permanent fences, with a fine orchard, vineyard, &c., &c., and at the expiration of that time couclude to sell, you will be doing well if you get fifty dollars per acre for your 160 acre tract. Let people pause and consider these things a little, or we shall have another inflation of real estate prices, followed by another long period of sickening, spiritless depression. Is the estimate of prices given in this article incorrect? If you think so ask the first man you meet with who has lately come from Ohio or Pennsylvania, and sold out his improved farm there, how much he got per gere, and how many acres he had to sell. And then consider that the word improvement means something more than a log cabin, a rotten cotton-wood fence and a spring of water. DAMNABLE OUTRAGE.

In Albany, Gentry county, on Thursday night, Mr. W. R. Boyer, local editor of the Grand River News, was shout dead by W. A. Hindley, and Content of the Gentry-ville, in the most cold blooded manner. From Deputy Sheriff John W. Barkley and Mr. C. B. Hinkley, of Albany, who rode all of Thursday night and arrived here yesterday, we learn the following particulates of the flendish outrage:

For some time Boyer and Hundley have not been on good terms. The dufficulty grew out of political differences, Boyer being a Republican and Hundley a bitter, hot-headed Rebel. The immediate incentive to the commission of the act, however, was the publication of a paragraph in the News, a few days ago, stating that two young men from Gentryville had recently visited Albany with two prostitutes, who they had palmed off at the hotel as decent women. No names were mentioned. One of these men who had thus disgraced themselves was Hundley.

Boyer was sitting on a stool in J. R. Cunningham's dry goods store, and but a few feet from the door, Hundley entered, walked deliberately up to within three or four feet of him without speaking, drew a revolver and fired, the ball entering the unfortunate man's breast and killing him instantly. Boyer will be remembered by many of our business men, as he visited the city some two weeks since for the purpose of soliciting advertisements for his paper. He was a quiet, gentlemanly young man, not more than twenty-six years of age, and was a general favorite with his acquaintances. He was originally from Ohio, but some time since was editorially connected with the Grant City Enterprise, Worth county, and last fall removed to Albany. He was unmarried.
